Part I - Integrating Community Energy into Everyday Decision Making

Part I of the workshop will focus on answering: "what are the drivers for community energy planning in the North? Who should be involved in the energy planning process and in what capacity? And how does decision making at the local and territorial level impact CEP implementation?" It will include presentations of real examples to help answer some of these questions as well as an interactive roundtable discussion to give workshop participants the opportunity to share their input.

Community Energy Planning: Getting to Implementation in the North Discussion Questions

Part I - Integrating community energy into everyday decision making

1. What are some possible drivers for CEPs in your community/jurisdiction?
2. Can you describe a success story related to the implementation of a community energy plan or project in your community/jurisdiction?
3. How might community energy planning align with initiatives currently being pursued in your community/jurisdiction?
4. What is the role of the local government/First Nations communities and what is the role of the territorial government when it comes to CEP development and implementation?

Part II - Building capacity for Community Energy Plan implementation

5. Who could you partner with in your community to advance community energy initiatives? How might they benefit from community energy planning?
6. What are some strategies for integrating energy into existing plans and processes at both the local and territorial level?
7. What could your organization do differently to help accelerate the uptake and implementation of community energy actions and plans?
